This we imagine will prove to be the explanation to the tier requiescence in done since the Secret try's term begun, and erfuseters business of resolving about a matter that is to be decided in the separate congressional districts of the State twelve months hence. The action of the anti-indorsement delegates will be regarded a distrongest evidence that they place the party interests above all lesser considerations while it does not seem possible that berato becomes stronge at tempt at what oppears unfortunately, a revival of that Bossisia which brought about the revolting unst Conkling of New York and Coucron in Penn ylv mir and avainst which Mr Sherman and his supporter so v gorously protested in 1850, om re ult either in Obio or the country it large in idding to the prestige that he has intherto copoyed as a hepublican leader

Resumed Operations Again

But now that the science business has bee renewed what are we going to do about it? I the retaliatory statute to be idead fetter. The Administration at a dead fetter. The Administration at Wishington does not seem to be in a hurry but pressing for 1900g; and compension for the wrongs, are fishermen have suffered in the 1st. But will not the American people must that the President shall respect the will of Congress and put he law of repression to force now that the outrages are renewed—New York Horld. Mr (leveland securs to have no time to devote to the history question while en gaged in the much more important work laying his wires to capture the Demotritic nomination next year. The Admin strat on is directly responsible for the outrige perpetrated upon the American hishermen and the never ending corre sprindence going on between Washington and Figland with no practical results and Figure with no praction results constitutes a travesty upon American that it frames it the outset the whole in titer would have stopped there and then, a travesty the first produce the statements of the first produce the statements of the first produce the statements of the first produce the statement of the statement of the first produce the statement of the sta π atter would have stopped there and then, but the Dominion authorities finding that the indigities heaped upon our fishermen food to arouse the reform Administration to mything like decisive action, continued its policy in the hope of forcing a way into the American market. The passage of the retaliatory law put a stop to the outriges for a time this season showing the effect of the firm stand taken by Cor oress but as it was evident that the Ad ministration had no sympathy with the act the seizures have been resumed and unless the President manifests a determi nation to that the law into force in the interest of our fishermen they will again be subjected to the sum unjustifiable breatment accorded them last year Consul-General I helan pronounces these recent services an 'outrage and now it remains

The Boston (Arbe publishes a lot of cor respondence showing that the anonymous attack on State Pressurer Burleigh in regard to the engraving of the new State bonds was really made by an official of an obsence engraving company out of business spite against the American Bank Note Company that has done such work for the State for many years and which is largely employed by the U S Government It seems that this man wrote a sneaking letter to the Portland Argus suggesting the attack upon Mr Burleigh, but Mr Adams, of the Argus, satisfied himself of the baselessness of the insinuations and manfully said as much in his paper. The correspondence is in every way most creditable to the State Treasurer who has incurred the enmity of some engraving concerns whose work according to the statement of the Secretary of the New York Stock Exchange has never been admitted to the stock list. The contract has been made with the Governor's approval with one of the foremost bank-note companies, of the country and the attempt to impute any wrong to the transaction has signally

Toledo, July 28. The Republican state Convention was called to order at 10 o'clock by Temporary Chairman Ryan. Ex-Gov. Charles Foster, Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, read the platform, which was as follows:

The Republican party in convention assembled submits to the people of Ohio the following declaration of its principles: to secure to the people the full benefits thereof!

Fifteenth. Recognizing, as the Republicans of Ohio always have, the gifted and tried statesinen of the Republican party of other States, loyal and unfallering in their devotion to the success of the organization in 1898, under whatever standard tearer the Republican Nations Convention may select, they have just pilde in the record and career of John Sherman as a member of the Republican party and as a statesman of fidelity, large experience and great ability.

His caree: as a statesman began with the birth of the Republican party. He has grown and developed with the growth of that organization. His genius and partiotism are stamped upon the records of the narry and the statutes are Constitution of the country, and billeving that his nomination for the office of President would be wise and judicious we respectfully, present

First. We are in favor of 1 protective turiff to secure to American chizens the privilege of supplying every stricke which can be produced as well in the United States as in other countries, and sufficiently to stipply American warts. Such a tariff makes a demand for and gives employment to the labor of American citizens and thereby acts in securing a just compensation for labor. We denounce the Ohio Democratic platform of turiff for revenue only, which demands an indiscriminate reduction in all ducies on Imported articles, the effect of which would be to encourage importations, thus giving American patronage to foreign products and foreign labor rather than to our own. wise and judicious we respectfully present his name to the people of the United States as a caudidate, and announce ou hearty and sordial support of him for that own. Second. While we adhere to the public

The tariff plank in the platform was received with loud cheers, and all the planks received more or less applause. When the endorsement of Governor Foraker's administration was reached the convention cheered as one man, many rising on their feet and swinging their bats. Loud calls were made for Forsker. The rebel flag clause revived the demonstration, relyed from Europe great hodes of honest and industrious citizens, who have added to the wealth, progress and power of our country, and while we welcome to our shores the well disposed and industrious emigrant, who contributes by his energy and intelligence to the cause of free government, we view with alarm unrestricted emigration from foreign lands as dangerous to the pence and good order of the country and the integrity and character of its citizenship. We urge Congess to pass such laws and establish such regulat ons as shall protect us from the inroac of the anarchist, communist, polygnmist, the fugitive from justice, the insance, the dependent paupers, the vicious and criminal classes, contract labor invery form, under any name, and all others who seek our shores, not to become a part of our civilization and citzenship, who acknowledge no allegiance to our laws, no sympathy with our nims and institutions, but who come among us to make clause revived the demonstration. When the last resolution, the famous Sherman endorsement, was reached the clearing broke out again. A motion was made to adopt the whole platform by acclamation, which was done unanimously without a dissenting vote. Tremendous cheering followed and loud calls were made for Sherman. LODGED IN BANGOR JAIL. The Story of Howe's Pursuit and Capture.

Frank Howe, the Patten robber, an account of whose arrest was given in yesterday's Wnig, was brought to this city yesterday afternoon by Capt. Gardner and Deputy Sheriff Smiley, of Patten, and lodged in the jail to await examination. Cantain Gardner is entitled to much credit for the energy and shrewdness with which he has handled this case, finally resulting in the capture, by himself personally, of the rogue for whom he was seeking. CHAPTER XIV.

On the following morning I descended to the dining room to find there Lady Brackmell, attended by her brace of devoted admirers, and I perchyed at once that Hilda had resumed the game of the provious evening I twis a game of which, as I knew, the never wearied is he had the appearance of being well satisfied with it now, which was more than could be said for either of the other players.

"After all," she was remarking, as I cutteed, "I can see why we should give ourselves aims because we ride and shoot better than most other nations. That is something, of curse, but there are so many other wars in which the French, for instance, are our superiors. They are a great deal more amusing to talk to, and they are more intustic, and they write better novels much better than ours?"

I said I must decline to deliver judgment upon that Joint, it was a matter of taste.

I don'd in ach care either All I sail was that they are not a sporting people. "There is more variety of sport in France than in England," said De Vienzac bolily. "We have, for example, the wilf and the wild boar!"—"And you gailop after 'em in green and gold coats, with horn's twisted round and round your boliles," inferrupted Beau-jehamp, not over courteously. "You have perhaps derived your ideas of French sport from the pediares in Panich," observed De Vienzac, without losing his temper. "They are framy, those pictures, they are very fanny, but I'd not think that the artists have drawn them from life."

'I have been in France," returned the other doggedly, "and I've seen it lot of classeurs, as you call them, shooting cock sparrows on Sunday afternoons."

De Vienzac shruggedl his shoulders. "You will come to it, my good friend," said he "What would you have? We are a little in alvance of you, we made our re-olution a hundred years ago. When your gome aws are aboushed, when your country equires can no more live upon their rents—then you will see "or the rest, the prrems who, as you say, shoot are game?"

"At any pate," observed Hilda, rising and bestowing a gracious smite upon that the short id be a good game shot when he has never the occasion to shot at game."

It was very beautiful in its way, under the gray autumal sky, with shafts of pale sunlight falling upon? the gnaded oaks and the withered bracken, and upon patches of gorse and heather here ind there. I had walken some distance across it and was wondering whether Le Vienzac's unpleasatt prophecy would ever se fulfilled—which it had upon which I was standing would ever he partjed out among peasant proprietors, that whether, in that cas, the peasant proprietors would not find out that they had made an uncommonly bad bargain, when the lind of approaching hoofs interrupted for musings, and presently Lady Bir cknell, riding hetween her two cavaliers, evely sight. They were pleased to draw rein on recognizing me, and Hilds said they had had a delightful ide, which assertion was received with emphatus ellence by her companions. In all praphility some bickering had taken thee during the course of it, for the two orea very looking daggers at each other, and it struck me that De Vicuzac was not quite as cool as he had been earlier in the day. A short distance ahead of us wis an inclosure, surrounded by a high fence of pests and ralls, like a large cattle pen. It may have been intended to serie t at purpose, or possibly, at certain segisons of the year, to confine the red deer of which there was a her I in the park.

"Oh, do, Mr. Beauchamy!" exclaimed

"Ob, do, Mr. Beaucham; I" exclaimed Hilda, enthusastically.
"My dear Lady Pracknell," I remonstrated, "what are you thinking off The thing is absolutely impossible."

I am not sure that thives impossible; I am an indifferent judge of matters of that kind, and I have read wonderful accounts of the high jumps accomplished by Australian horses. But I should certainly be very sorry either to attempt such a feat myself, or to see any friend of mine attempt it. Hilda did not seem to have heard me. "Oh, do try!" she pheated. "It know!"

tempt it. Hittle did not seem to have heard me "Oh, do tryl' she repeated." I know you would get over all right." Beauchamp's reply was highly creditable to his good sense and self control. "I might get over," he said. "Whether I could get out again is another question. But, anyhow, I couldr's think of risking it with mother real's lorse."

De Vieuzao smiled, and Beauchamp turned upon him at once. "Wat's that you say?" he asked, 'shrrply, "I assure you," answered the Frenchman, with exaggerated politeness, "that I did not utter one word."

"You were thinking something, though."

You were thinking something, though."

'Oh, for that, yes. I was thinking something; I admit. I was thinking that somethings if is very convenient to be riding a friand's horse.

The words anomical to a stadled insult, and would unquestionably have been so accepted in De Vienzae's own country. In France speeches of that kind are permissible, their consequences being, of connue, well understood? But neither in France nor elsewhere is at customary to offensuch direct proviocation in the presence of a lady, and Beauchamp wint up several degrees.

I disloped laws. The two men. fo lowed her. I confess that I hurried back to the house as fast as my legs would carry me. I dislike and deprecate quarrels a love everything, istill, if quarrels must needs take place, why should I not be there to see? After De Vicuzac's inexcusable conduct, I felt that it would be a real satisfaction to me to see him knocked down, and I thought that if I made great hasts, I might just manage to arrive it time. As it turned out, I reached the front door with several minutes to space. From the flight of steps which led up to it I could descry the riders, who, perhaps, had made a detour, approaching at a foot's pace, and presently I had the honor of assisting I and JB Bracknell to dismount. She stood for a moment, tapping her foot with her riding whip, and looking with an odd, satirical expression at the rivals. "Au revoir," she shid nedding to them; "I am going to lie dewn till dinner time." Then she made a scarcely perceptible sign with her hand to Beauchamp, who ran up the steps after her and accompanied her into the house.

De Vieuzac and I remained where we were I suppose we both knew that Beauchamp would be out again directly. And indeed the horses had hirdly been led away to the stables before he emerged pud made straight for us.

"The method," observed Da Vienzac sweetly, "seems a little barbarons. For me, I confess that I have not karned to how, but with the sword or the pis of I shall be charmed to hold myself at your disposition." You do not; perfaps, use those weapons?"

"Oh, don't we, though." retured Beanchamp, with a short laugh "I shall be happy to prove the contrary to you when and where you please, only, of course, it can't be in this country. If it's the same thing to you, I should prefer to stay out my time here, but next week I will meet you at Ostend or any other: place you choose to name."
